

NURDOS ALIASKAROV

ARTIST BIOGRAPHY

Nurdos Aliaskarov is a prominent Kazakh contemporary jewelry artist and metal designer who reimagines nomadic heritage through modern wearability. He crafts bold, sculptural pieces that fuse sacred steppe traditions with innovative forms, positioning ancient artistry in a global design context.

Born and based in Kazakhstan, Nurdos Aliaskarov has built a distinguished career by elevating traditional Kazakh jewelry art (zhergerstvo) into the realm of modern luxury. Known for his "Nomadic Contemporary" style, Aliaskarov meticulously designs each piece by hand, blending fine silver and 18-karat gold with substantial raw or polished gemstones such as turquoise, lapis lazuli, and labradorite. His creative process involves heavy hand-engraving, filigree, and oxidation techniques, creating unique textures that evoke the landscapes and history of the Silk Road. Throughout his career, Aliaskarov has gained international acclaim for his iconic interpretations of historic Central Asian jewelry, including the "Bes Blezik" (traditional multi-ring hand jewelry) and statement signet rings. His exceptional work has represented Kazakh cultural craftsmanship on prestigious runways and exhibitions across Europe, with notable showcases in major art capitals including Rome and Brussels.
